BACKGROUND

Dr Lynn Stothers is a native of Vancouver and obtained her specialist certification in Urology in 1993. Following this, she traveled to University of California Los Angeles as the UBC McLaughlin Fellow in medicine and obtained subspecialty training in urinary incontinence, neurourology and urodynamics under the direction of Dr. Shlomo Raz.

Dr. Stothers sits on the research committee for the International Consultation on Incontinence/WHO, and is a section editor for several urology journals. She holds competitive research grants for numerous national and international agencies including the US NIH. Her collaborative work on near infrared spectroscopy has recently been patented by UBC and is currently undergoing commercial development for use around the world.
