

Victor D.W. Chow, MD, FRCSC

Clinical Associate Professor

UBC Centre for Reproductive Health, Department of Gynecology,
Vancouver, BC

Affiliated Physician, Genesis Fertility Centre, Vancouver, BC

Affiliated Physician, Pacific Centre for Reproductive Medicine, Burnaby, BC

Staff Urologist, Lions Gate Hospital, North Vancouver, BC

Dr. Victor D.W. Chow is originally from Toronto and settled in Vancouver in 1993. His medical degree was obtained from Queen's University in 1993. After a rotating internship year at Lions Gate Hospital with UBC, he completed a research year and entered the Urology program at UBC, obtaining his fellowship (FRCSC) in 1999. Further sub-specialty training in the field of andrology and male infertility was performed at the University of Toronto (Mount Sinai Hospital) in 2000. Dr. Chow also is a Fellow of the American College of Surgeons (FACS). His main urological practice is based out of North Vancouver at the Lions Gate Hospital. He holds an appointment of Clinical Associate Professor with the Department of Urologic Sciences at UBC, where he is involved with clinical teaching of medical students and residents. In addition, Dr. Chow is active with the Division of Reproductive Endocrinology and Infertility, Department of Obstetrics and Gynecology, where he sits on the REI Fellowship Committee.